Introduction

HCN Revera Lessee Aspen Ridge LP ("Aspen Ridge" or the "Employer") and the Alberta Union of Provincial Employees (the "Union") are parties to a collective agreement (the "Agreement") that expired January 31, 2019. The employees at Aspen Ridge have been unionized since March 2012 and this renewal represents the second collective agreement since Revera purchased this residence in 2015 and the third collective agreement since certification.

Aspen Ridge is a privately owned retirement home in the City of Red Deer. It is owned by HCN Revera Lessee LP who purchased it from Symphony Senior Living in 2015. Revera owns 15 retirement homes in Alberta. The service workers at the homes are represented by several different Unions, AUPE, CUPE and UFCW. In total 13 of the 15 facilities are Unionized and 11 have current collective agreements and are listed below.

Retirement Home	Union	Expiry Date
The Edgemont	AUPE	December 2018
Aspen Ridge	AUPE	January 2019
Churchill	AUPE	December 2022
Riverbend	AUPE	December 2020

Scenic Acres	AUPE	December 2022
River Ridge	AUPE	December 2024
Our Parents' Home	AUPE	1 st agreement TBD
McConachie Gardens	AUPE	1 st agreement TBD
Meadowlands	UFCW	December 2023
McKenzie Towne (LPN/HCA)	CUPE	December 2023
Chateau Renoir	CUPE	April 2024
Scenic Grande	CUPE	December 2023
Heartland	CUPE	December 2022

Aspen Ridge is a retirement home setting in which the beds are solely funded by the residents, and it receives no designated supportive living funding.

AUPE is Alberta's largest union, representing approximately 93,000 Albertans who work in government, health care, education, boards and agencies, municipalities, and private companies. Approximately 53,000 of its members work for public, private, not for profit and for-profit health care providers. Over 15,000 of them work in senior's care outside of the Alberta Health Services ("AHS") system. These members include both auxiliary nursing care and general support services roles.

The bargaining unit at Aspen Ridge is comprised of approximately 99 employees in the following classifications: Health Care Aide, Licensed Practical Nurse, Dietary Aide, Dishwasher, Active Living Aide, Cook, Assistant Cook, Bus Driver, Receptionist/Concierge, Environmental Services Assistant, Housekeeping Aide, and Laundry Aide. Health Care Aides being the most populous classification working approximately 42% of the employees.

The distribution of employees across the classification is as follows:

Position	No. of Full-time Employees	No. of Part-Time (casual) Employees
Active Living Aide	1	1 (0)
Assistant Cook	1	1 (0)
Bus Driver	1	0 (0)
Concierge	1	4 (0)
Cook	2	2 (0)
Dietary Aide	3	6 (1)
Dishwasher	1	1 (4)
Environmental Services Asst.	0	1 (0)
Health Care Aide	16	11 (15)
Housekeeping Aide	3	2 (2)

Laundry Aide	1	1 (0)
Licensed Practical Nurse	3	3 (5)
Wait Staff	0	4 (2)

Bargaining Background

The Agreement between the parties expired on January 31, 2019. The parties commenced negotiations in February 2019 and met a total of four times on February 8, September 18, November 12 and December 13, 2019, but were unable to achieve a collective agreement.

The Union served the Employer with Essential Services notice to bargain on December 11, 2020, and the parties met on three occasions to negotiate an Essential Services Agreement: January 26, 28 and April 8, 2021.

The parties engaged in section 65(2.1) (d) mediation on October 20, 2021, however, were unable to achieve a resolution.

It was determined that as a result of the failure at mediation that I would conduct an interest arbitration in accordance with accepted interest arbitration principles to resolve matters that remain in dispute between the parties. In November 2021, I was appointed by Honourable Tyler Shandro, KC, Minister of Labour and Immigration as the one-member Compulsory Arbitration Board (“CAB”) to hear the dispute.

Further negotiations were held on September 21 and 22, 2022, in an attempt to resolve the impasse, however no progress was made to address the outstanding matters in dispute.

The parties agreed to proceed by way of written submissions. Relying on the written submissions of the parties I am now issuing the decision with respect to the renewal of the collective bargaining agreement between the parties.

Interest Arbitration Principles

S. 101 of the Alberta Labour Relations Code, RSA 2000, c L-1, lays out the criteria for consideration by this Board, some of which are mandatory and some of which are discretionary:

Matters to be considered

101 To ensure that wages and benefits are fair and reasonable to the employees and employer and are in the best interest of the public, the compulsory arbitration board

- (a) shall consider, for the period with respect to which the award will apply, the following:
 - (i) wages and benefits in private and public, and unionized and non-unionized, employment;
 - (ii) the continuity and stability of private and public employment, including
 - (A) employment levels and incidence of layoffs,
 - (B) incidence of employment at less than normal working hours, and
 - (C) opportunity for employment;

(iii) the general economic conditions in Alberta,

and

(b) may consider, for the period with respect to which the award will apply, the following:

- (i) the terms and conditions of employment in similar occupations outside the employer's employment taking into account any geographic, industrial or other variations that the board considers relevant;
- (ii) the need to maintain appropriate relationships in terms and conditions of employment between different classification levels within an occupation and between occupations in the employer's employment;
- (iii) the need to establish terms and conditions of employment that are fair and reasonable in relation to the qualifications required, the work performed, the responsibility assumed and the nature of the services rendered;
- (iv) any other factor that it considers relevant to the matter in dispute.

There was little disagreement between the parties on the legal principles to be applied to the interest arbitration process and these are generally well understood.

The decision of Arbitrator Sims in Newport Harbour Care Centre Partnership and AUPE Local 048 Chapter 014, [2012] A.G.A.A. No. 65 lays out the principles in detail. I will not replicate the excerpt in its entirety here but instead will summarize the key elements as follows:

- Interest arbitration seeks to replicate what the parties would have achieved through free collective bargaining.
- An arbitrator's notions of social justice or fairness are not to be substituted for market and economic realities.
- A party advancing a position carries the onus of presenting cogent evidence to support that position.
- Regardless of whether an individual benefit may seem attractive or well supported is not sufficient, it is not viewed in isolation but is instead determined on a package basis having regard for total compensation.
- Replication involves an exercise of evaluating comparable settlements negotiated by similarly placed parties for a similar timeframe in a similar industry as a key indicator of what the parties may have accepted in a free collective bargaining situation.

Arbitrator Smith in Carewest v Alberta Union of Provincial Employees, 2013 CanLII 66967 (AB GAA) at page 3, further confirmed that:

“Viewing each element in isolation without consideration of the whole of the proposal fails to recognize the collective bargaining involves a series of compromises and trade-offs to achieve an overall settlement that both parties can accept. No party to such a process does or can expect to achieve all of what is sought.”

As Arbitrator Casey noted in Signature Living (Rocky Ridge) at para 42;

“Interest arbitration is not a scientific process. There is no magic formula. A party advancing a particular position carries the onus of presenting cogent evidence to support that position. This does not equate to an issue by issue approach where benefits are awarded because they seem individually attractive and well supported. Collective bargaining involves choices between desirable benefits, and agreements are settled on a package basis.”

It is clear that the interest arbitration process should not reward a failure of a party to establish a demonstrated need, to set priorities or to reasonably propose language that reflects these factors. (see Dufferin County Board of Education and OSSTF; Metropolitan Toronto Boards of Education and Teachers Dispute Act) It is not the job of an interest arbitrator to guess as to what would work or be acceptable or to compromise between the positions in order to split the difference.

The interest arbitration process is conservative and any change in the language must be substantiated based on identified needs. The quote from Arbitrator Stanley in the Ten Participating Nursing Homes and SEIU 1987 decision captures this perfectly:

“Arbitration is a conservative process in the sense that it has a tendency toward maintenance of the “Status Quo”. There must be a demonstrated need for change before we can address ourselves to the question of what change is acceptable. The Arbitration process should not be viewed as an opportunity to make changes in a collective agreement based on philosophical preferences. In this way it should closely resemble the collective bargaining process which, in our experience, tends very quickly to focus on settling real practical problems and setting aside those proposals that stem from both parties simply seeking what would be, from their point of view, a better agreement.”

This translates to the fact that status quo will prevail unless the party proposing a change has either justified its position through identification of issues in the workplace or alternatively it can demonstrate through replication and comparability that an alteration of a term or condition is appropriate. This requires compelling evidence for change and is the standard appropriately applied to the parties at interest arbitration.

It is understood that the arbitrator's view of fairness or what may be preferable language or potentially what may be a more attractive or elegant solution is not relevant. The exercise is one of objective analysis and to replicate to the extent possible what agreement the parties would have made had they not hit impasse.

Comparator Agreements

The Union asserted that the universe of comparators includes all AUPE contracts in the continuing care industry, including long term care, supportive living and independent living sites. This includes public, private, not-for-profit and faith-based employers. It argued that the most relevant comparable agreements are those from the geographic areas of urban centres, such as Calgary, Edmonton, Lethbridge etc, especially the Health Centres. The Union has also argued that the collective agreements the Employer has negotiated with other unions, such as the United Food and Commercial Workers ("UFCW") or the Canadian Union of Public Employees ("CUPE") are not relevant comparators.

The Employer identified that the appropriate comparators for consideration for this arbitration are the thirteen Revera Retirement homes. These homes are located in Edmonton, Calgary and Red Deer, and a number of them are AUPE agreements. The Employer noted that the bargaining relationship between AUPE and HCN Revera Lessee LP is mature and well established to support its assertion that the Revera agreements are the best comparators upon which I should rely. The Employer further emphasized that the broader universe of Retirement Homes in Alberta that receive Designated Supportive Living funding also recognize a distinction between the relative sectors.

I accept that the best comparative collective agreements are those in the similar industry and sector, which in this case is the retirement home sector and those between the same or similar parties. This includes the agreements that the Employer has negotiated with other Unions and are appropriate for me to include in my deliberations. Having said that I find the best comparators to be the Revera collective agreements negotiated by the Employer with AUPE. To a lesser extent the broader universe of retirement homes in the province are also relevant, particularly those in the urban markets such as Calgary, Edmonton and Red Deer.

Items in Agreement

Where the parties were able to agree on items during the bargaining process, these items should be included in the renewal agreement. Any items agreed to prior to the referral to interest arbitration are incorporated in this Award.

Items in Dispute

The following list of articles were identified as the remaining issues in dispute between the parties at the time of the referral to the CAB:

- Article 2 Term
- Article 18 Shift Differential
- Article 19 Weekend Premium
- Article 23 Benefits
- Article 24 Layoff and Recall
- Article 35 Temporary Assignment Pay
- Article 40 Registration Fees
- Wages

Having consideration for the submissions of the parties, the following constitutes our Award on these items:
